JANE STEELE
by Lyndsay Faye
(G.P. Putnam's Sons)

“Jane Steele is a great read for lovers of Victorian literature who especially love their characters to have a lot of pluck! Jane Steele is the adventurous, irreverent, foul-mouthed broad that I so often loved about Jane Eyre, but in more wily circumstances. Remember that fabulous scene in Jane Eyre when she stands up to her aunt for the first time, and how you wanted to stand up from your comfy reading chair and cheer for her? Imagine an entire book just of those sorts of scenes. Absolutely fabulous fun!”

THE PASSenger
A Novel
by Lisa Lutz
(Simon & Schuster)

“This is a compulsively readable story of a young woman who has to keep switching identities and stay on the run. Is she a reliable narrator or not? What was the original event that sent her on the run? There is a lot of action as suspense as she tries to survive and evade the law while trying to keep her moral center intact. Unlike Lutz’s Spellman books, this reads more like a Charles Portis road novel, though considerably more serious and dangerous. Highly recommended.”

MARKED IN FLESH
A Novel of the Others
by Anne Bishop
(Roc)

“In this thrilling installment, Bishop continues to explore the The Others and the humans who live at the Lakeside compound. Meanwhile, Humans First and Last organization has been making themselves known, after the attacks in the previous book. Little do they know it’s not the Others humans need to worry about. The Bronte series, set a generation earlier. Billie Bridgerton spent her childhood running wild with the neighboring Rokesbys, Andrew, Edward, and Mary. Now she runs the family estate for her father fast. But though they all do some terrible things in the name of ambition, there’s something lovable about the Plumbers. You can’t fail to be moved by the beating heart of this novel, which seems to say that family, for good or ill, unites us all.”
—Mary Kinser, Whatcom County Library System, Bellingham, WA

THE MADWOMAN
UPSTAIRS
A Novel
by Catherine Lowell (Touchstone)

“Meet Samantha Whipple, a descendant of the Bronte family, who arrives at Oxford to study literature, as her father did before her. She receives a copy of Jane Eyre - a volume that she thought was destroyed in the fire that took her father’s life. When a second Bronte novel belonging to her father turns up, she is convinced he has staged an elaborate treasure hunt for her promised inheritance. Enlisting the help of her sexy, young professor, Samantha sets out on a quest to find buried treasure and learns the value of friendship and courage along the way.”

BECAUSE OF MISS BRIDGERTON
A Novel
by Julia Quinn
(Avon)

“This is the first in a prequel series to Quinn’s popular Bridgerton series, set a generation earlier. Billie Bridgerton spent her childhood running wild with the neighboring Rokesbys, Andrew, Edward, and Mary. Now she runs the family estate for her father fast. But though they all do some terrible things in the name of ambition, there’s something lovable about the Plumbers. You can’t fail to be moved by the beating heart of this novel, which seems to say that family, for good or ill, unites us all.”

DIMESTORE
A Writer’s Life
by Lee Smith
(Algonquin Books)

“Evenly divided between a book about Smith’s process and her life, first as a Southern mountain child and, later, as the parent of a schizophrenic child, this book is interesting and compelling. Despite being surrounded by loving family and being blessed with an active imagination, Lee copes with a mentally ill mother. Later, her son’s mental illness and early death brings her to the breaking point but she is saved by her writing. This is a read-alike for Karr’s The Liars Club. It desperately needs a cinematic translation for it’s elegant and evocative writing.”
—Lois Gross, Hoboken Public Library, Hoboken, NJ

ALL THINGS CEASE TO APPEAR
A Novel
by Elizabeth Brundage
(Knopf)

“When the Clare family purchases a ramshackle farmhouse at a foreclosure auction, it appears that all is well in their world, until George comes home one evening from his job as an Art History Professor at the local private college and finds his wife murdered and their three-year-old untouched yet unharmed. Told through the eyes of the townspeople and the families involved, this is a gorgeously unsettling look at a marriage and what happens to a community in the process of change.”
—Jennifer Dayton, Darien Library, Darien, CT

THE SUMMER BEFORE THE WAR
A Novel
by Helen Simonson
(Random House)

“Fans of Simonson’s Major Pettigrew’s Last Stand have reason to rejoice. She has created another engaging novel full of winsome characters, this time set during the summer before the outbreak of World War I. Follow the story of headstrong, independent Beatrice Nash and kind but stuffy surgeon-in-training Hugh Grange along with his formidable Aunt Agatha. Make a cup of tea and prepare to savor every page!”
